The National Bank of Moldova opens its doors to the public on the Institution's 35th Anniversary

The National Bank of Moldova (NBM) will open its doors to the public on 4 June, in celebration of Bank Workers' Day and the 35th anniversary of the institution's founding. During guided tours, visitors will have the opportunity to explore the central bank in a more personal and accessible way, discover the monetary heritage of the Republic of Moldova, and even view a gold bar, specially displayed for this anniversary.

"The Open Day at the National Bank, organised during this milestone year, is an invitation to learning, dialogue, and understanding the role that financial stability, civic responsibility, and financial education play in the life of every citizen. It is a day that strengthens transparency and dialogue with society, in a space dedicated to open communication and financial education. The NBM is a key part of the Republic of Moldova's economic architecture, contributing to the consolidation of the national currency and the modernisation of financial infrastructure, aligned with the needs of citizens and the business community," said the Governor of the National Bank of Moldova, Ms Anca Dragu.

During the guided tours, visitors will be able to explore the central bank's exhibition hall, where the monetary history of the Republic of Moldova is presented through banknotes, coins, documents, and landmarks reflecting the country's economic journey. The exhibition provides insights into the period before the introduction of the Moldovan leu, as well as the transformations that accompanied the formation of the nation's monetary identity.

A special section will be dedicated to commemorative and jubilee coins in gold and silver, issued by the National Bank in thematic series highlighting the Republic of Moldova's cultural, historical, and scientific heritage. Visitors will be able to admire issues dedicated to prominent personalities, monuments and historical events, folk traditions, science, innovation, and other symbols that define the country's memory and continuity.

Visitors will also learn how banknotes are protected and will have the chance to check, together with NBM specialists, the main security features using specialised equipment.

Tours will take place on 4 June, from 10:00 to 15:00, on the hour, with no prior registration required. Entry to the National Bank building requires the presentation of a valid ID.
