NBM Governor discussed with representatives of the US Treasury Department

The Governor of the National Bank of Moldova, Anca Dragu, met with representatives of the U.S. Treasury Department, a delegation led by Mr. Brian McCauley, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Europe and Eurasia. Discussions focused on the macroeconomic outlook, cybersecurity projects and international sanctions.

Participants at the meeting included senior U.S. Treasury officials, including Steve Swartz, Deputy Director of the U.S. Treasury, who provided valuable insights on current challenges and opportunities for collaboration. During the meeting, the Governor of the National Bank of Moldova discussed the National Bank's oversight policies on cashless payment instruments, the current situation and trends in the area of transaction security.

"The NBM continuously monitors threats and potential risks and implements effective security solutions in line with international regulations. At the financial sector level, we work with specialized institutions that immediately report security incidents. We actively work with these partners to identify measures to manage incidents and prevent their recurrence", said Anca Dragu.

The conclusions of the meeting outline directions for future cooperation and the development of strategic solutions to current challenges.

The meeting took place in Washington, USA, on the margin of the IMF and World Bank Annual Meetings, which provide a forum for dialog and exchange of experiences among senior representatives of the international financial sector.
